HONGKONG, SATURDAY, AUGUST 15, 1868.

THE CITY HALL.

Now that the City Hall is approaching completion the vague feeling of wonder as to its capabilities, and the destination of its various apartments is beginning to brighten into something like interest.
Public rumour asserts that arrangements have been made for the internal decorations, but no details of what these are to be have reached us. There is fair ground for presuming that he will do his work well, but the public have been afforded no chance of commenting upon the proposed designs. True, the City Hall is a proprietary building; but it is of a sufficiently public nature to warrant criticism, which would be out of place as applied to an undertaking commenced under similar circumstances, but intended solely for the use of a small section of the community. We do not desire to cave at the efforts being made to get the building satisfactorily completed, but to impress upon the committee, that if they do not wish their acts to be misunderstood or misrepresented, they either must give that fair publicity to their acts which the public demand, or submit to any comment right or wrong which they allow the public to receive. A formal authorization to the Secretary to communicate, of his own motion, any matters of interest to the local journals would meet this necessity.

When the building was first planned, a Library, Meeting Hall, and Museum were mentioned as being the probable titles of the three principal apartments.
If this be true—that is, if the intention of so appropriating them still exists—it is to be wondered at that no steps appear to have been taken towards collecting books or material for the first or third named. It was vaguely stated that an organ was to be placed in the principal hall, to fit it for imposing ceremonies or lighter meetings, in which music bore a part. But nothing appears to have been done. As regards the library and museum, it may be urged that it will be time enough to see about the contents of these rooms, when they are completed; and at home we should probably admit this as a perfectly valid reason for letting matters "stand over." But, when the very short average of a foreigner's residence in Hongkong is taken into consideration, it is evident that if the present generation of Colonists are to enjoy the results of good establishments, no time should be lost in making arrangements. The matter might be managed with extreme ease, and with so little outlay of time or trouble on the part of the committee, that there is really no valid reason for inaction.

Appoint a librarian and curator—and we venture to think that gentlemen could be found to accept these posts without salary—and instruct them to do their best in getting promises of books and material for the rooms in question, engaging merely to pay the postage of their correspondence. By these means we should in a few months know what could be counted on in the way of voluntary help, without which the museum at least could scarcely be inaugurated, or the directors would learn that but very slight contributions of either books or material could be counted on without purchase and would thus be enabled to form a definite conclusion as to the advisability of attempting to carry out this portion of the (supposed) programme.
There would however, we imagine, be a very ready response on the part of scientific residents in China to meet the views of the committee, especially if the museum partook of the nature of a loan exhibition. Many would gladly permit articles which they had collected to remain on public view if it was understood that they would be well cared for and returned when departure from the country rendered the owners desirous of withdrawing them, while it is very certain that in many cases these would become the museum property by purchase at a low rate or by gift. As regards the library there are two collections of books here which might be looked to to form the nucleus of an extensive collection—that of the Morrison Education Society and the quadrum Victoria Library, the final disposal of which we believe still in abeyance.

THE UNION DOCK.

The French barque Pacote was docked in the Union Dock Company's new Dock at Kowloon shortly after six o'clock this morning, in the presence of a few gentlemen interested in the undertaking.
Messrs Endicott, Kresser, Behre, and R.
S. Walker being amongst the number.
Mr. Inglis, the acting secretary; Mr. A.
D. Mitchell, manager of the carpenter's department; and Mr. Anderson, foreman of works, were also present, directing the works. The operation of docking the ship, though very quietly got through —in fact, there was no ceremony whatever—was most significant, as calling to mind the many obstacles raised during the dock's construction by officious meddlers, and the ultimate subsidence of said meddler in favour of judicious economy and common sense. At half-past five everything was in readiness, and at six o'clock, the caisson floated smoothly and swung steadily round the west side of the dock. Immediately upon this being done the bow of the Pacote, passed between the pier-heads, and the operation of docking was accomplished without the slightest jar in about five or ten minutes—the 500-ton barque appearing in the spacious dock-basin like a mere handbarrow. Even contrary to expectation, the caisson was replaced in the course of a few minutes, it having been found that no mud whatever had collected on the sill. There was a depth of 20½ feet of water in the dock.
In the exercise of a commendable predence and a policy of economy, no demonstration whatever was made, either in gormandization or wine-bibbing, not even in christening. But the few gentlemen present celebrated the occasion by drinking to the success and the future prosperity of the new dock. It was agreed nem con. that the position of the dock would make its success a necessity; and hopes were expressed that in the course of another year a smaller dock would be opened near the present one, and that the shareholders would by that time be receiving a fair and reasonable dividend for their money invested. The new steam-launch belonging to the Naval Yard authorities arrived with a party of gentlemen just in time to share in the above sentiments, amongst which party were the Master Attendant, R.N., Inspector of Naval Machinery, and others from the same department.

The Union Dock is therefore now opened with a fair start. It is a safe and fine dock; the pumps we understand are by no means so ineffective as some people would lead us to imagine; the Company's staff is composed of men whose equals or superiors in their own departments would be difficult to find; and there is no every-prospect of success and remunerative dividends. In the interests, commercial and mercantile, of the Colony, we heartily say Amen to the good-wishes expressed this morning at the scene of the opening.

We take the following from the War Office Gazette of the 12th June:—Ceylon Rifle Regiment—Major and brevet Col. James Mcdonald to be Lieutenant-colonel, with out-

ARMING OF WOMEN BY LOPEZ.
The correspondent of the Brazil and River Plate Mail, writing from Buenos Ayres under date May 14th, says:—

"An army of women confronts the allies," Lopez has enrolled the Amazons of Paraguay, and we have now entered upon what may be called, for the sake of distinction—the petticoat campaign! Let not the reader smile incredulously. The fact is so. Brigadier General Eliz Lynch commands the is the main body of the female army, which is encamped midway between the pass of the river and a small inland town. On the road to Villa Rica her right wing, under Mrs Captain Herrero, has deployed to the left a little, to hang on the allies should they assail the position at Tebiquary, held by Mrs Lieut. Colonel Margaret Ferreira and her fair brigade of female soldiers.

'stern visaged Mars' prove unpropitious, or do other than crow with success the military ardour of his new votaries? I am not 'Sir Oracle' and cannot say; possessing no gifts of prophecy, I take refuge in a conventional quien sabe? But seriously, these military titles sound strangely to the ear in connection with names that have hitherto only figured in the humanising concerns of love and family affection, but are now inconspicuously associated with the rough and bloody trade of war. A scandal has been brought upon the civilization of the age, and Lopez must answer to public opinion for thus tearing the women of Paraguay from their homes to fill the exhausted ranks of a worn-out army. On such an act the world cries 'Shame!' According to authentic accounts relays of girls and women are constantly at the head-quarters of the feminine Commander-in-Chief, to whom they have been entrusted the guerrilla portion of the campaign. The males are absorbed in defending Humaita, Ymbu, the encampment at Villa Rica, and the men! The only difference is that we give the news more in detail, having at our command superior information from the foreigners up the river. As to the exact number of the women under arms in Paraguay at present it is impossible to say, owing to the varied and conflicting statements, but for years past a great portion of the heavy work attending our camp life has been performed by the unfortunate daughters of that once lovely country! Even in the trenches around Hyattsville the march was of the grave for the allied invaders! Female couriers have gone from point to point over the country with dispatches, the steamers and vessels in the port of Annapolis have been alternately discharged and laden by the trembling hands of the women in the capital. Everything of worth and capital that these poor women possessed has been snatched from them to assist in the defence of their country! They have toiled in the field for the last three months, then have they have maintained the hospitals, cared for the wounded and sick; they have supplied the army—and now, with Satan's power, they are dragged to the front, and placed in the breach to fight the whole allied army!"

But let it not be supposed that there is any exaggeration in the foregoing news. Every newspaper in Buenos Ayres has already published the glaring and awful fact that Lopez had commenced recruiting.

LORD BYRON.

His name did not appear in subscription lists, though his pass was always open to the needy; he wrote Hebrew Melodies, which a living critic has pronounced to be "fraught with the spirit of Isaiah," but he did not subscribe to the "Propagation of the Gospel Society," he abhorred slavery, but he did not swell the train of Mr. Wilberforce. He poured forth profusely descriptions of the glories of foreign lands, but he indulged in none of the sentiments which make Englishmen "justly proud of their country." In his opinions he was a kind of "armist in London"—not one of the smooth and easy people who value utility and power after-dinner-digests, but an upsurge of noble, earnest, and delicate an upsurge of noble. He poured people quite as he delighted them; and, unlikewise for himself, he delighted in puzzling them. But this hero of a season retired and will ever ride with a slave in his triumphant chariot. The golden statue has always been a play, and the golden statue of a handsome and accomplished Alcibiades, next to the pleasure of seating him on the throne is the pleasure of dragging him on the floor. Neither content of credible virtuousness nor zeal in his champion is able to displace Byron in a uniform light. Those who were not in his intimacy count on their accounts of his nature, and his nature is silent and self-centred, free of speech and affable in demeanour; at times a satirist and speculative as Hamlet, at times mocking and grotesque as Scarron. Highly generous and benevolent, he deemed no sacrifices for others too great; yet he delighted in teasing his friends, as children delight in teasing their playmates. He was a man who shows him parodying virtuous whom he highly esteemed, or punning lampoons, or those whom he had praised in verse, or to whom he had dedicated poems. His literary tastes were not more consistent than his personal likings. He was among the foremost moral innovators in English poetry, and yet a worshipper at the shrine of Pope. There were, however, things that he found indifferent to Shakespeare, and though he was a great reader, he made him famous between bedtime and breakfast was written in the Spenserian measure, he could not endure the Fair Queen. Like Horace Walpole, he reviled, yet there are few symptoms of admiration in his writings for "King Mob"; he often satirized his own order, and yet he was proud of his Norman blood. He was consistent indeed in his love for Shelley and Moore, and the strokes he most severely dealt were those which he early denigrated of his school and college. In the hands of his scholarship, his ingenuity, his wit, and his metaphysical speculations, inspired him with a kind of awe, which did not however, interfere with genuine affection. Moore's society and correspondence afforded him unmixcd and unfauling delight. Neither was there any variances in his demeanour to dependents. He knew their worth as well as he knew that of the parasites who swarmed themselves in his favour. To Fletcher and Tita he was a kind and equable master; he played with, according to their deserts, the Medwina and Polidoro of his retinue.
